

911 Emergency

Practice = Permanent

Teach your child how to use the telephone. S/he should be taught to remember the emergency phone number '911' and '0' for the operator. Make sure you teach each number separately. For example, say "nine-one-one" and not "nine-eleven." There will be less confusion for the child when dialing 911 in a real emergency. You and your child can practice on the imaginary phone numbers below. However, for children to thoroughly understand this concept, it is best to teach them on the actual phone. Make sure your child knows what an emergency is, when to use 911 and when not to use it. Just to be safe, a list of emergency phone numbers posted by the telephone is always a great safety tool in any home emergency.

Note: Also make sure your child knows how to use your cell phone.
